

Wrong decision

Last week's Q&A on the ABC was an informative discussion from six intelligent women, including Fran Kelly.

Mona Eltahawy claims profanity is politically important. She uses it to speak truth to power. During the discussion, Mona made her point. She will not be told how she must talk or what she can say. Social media has given everyone a voice. And Mona made it clear she was going to use hers.

By removing the episode from view, the ABC has silenced important feminist voices. This is clearly not our ABC.

Sarah Russell, Northcote